- ❖ IMF Africa Director Commends Ghana's Progress in Electricity Access and Living Standards: Abebe Aemro Selassie, the Director of the African Department at the IMF, praised Ghana's advancements in development, especially in electricity access and living standards, attributing these successes to local efforts rather than IMF programs. He highlighted that electricity access rose from 30-40% two decades ago to nearly 90% today, improving the quality of life for many. However, he warned that challenges remain in job creation and macroeconomic stability, which are vital for sustainable and inclusive growth. (Norvanreports)
- ❖ Government Begins Process to Implement Constitutional Review Proposals: The Ghanaian government is preparing to implement proposals from the Constitutional Review process, with Attorney General Dr. Dominic Ayine emphasizing an inclusive and structured approach rooted in existing legal institutions, particularly the Law Reform Commission. He noted that constitutional reform should not be isolated from broader law reform efforts, ensuring coherence and continuity. A position paper on the proposals will be published soon, aiming to align with the government's policy priorities and support institutional renewal and democratic accountability. Observers point to a more coordinated approach this time, signalled by the involvement of the Law Reform Commission and plans for a dedicated implementation committee, as the focus shifts from discussion to action in reforming Ghana's legal framework.
